

GAYLE ROTHROCK, VANCOUVER, WA

Ms. Rothrock has been involved in public interest work for the past 35 years in the public, private, and non-profit sectors and in higher education. For five years she was Foundation Administrator for the Northwest Fund for the Environment, and sat on the Board of Directors for the Washington Foundation.

Ms. Rothrock has served on many commissions in Washington State including the state's Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council. She was an Interim Director and a five year Commission member for the Columbia River Gorge Commission, and served for six years on the Shorelines and Pollution Control Hearings Boards. As well she was the first Director of The Council for the Homeless in Clark County. For several years she has been a training specialist serving public agencies and small businesses and has taught at The Evergreen State College and community colleges in western Washington and Oregon.

Ms. Rothrock graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in American Studies from Mills College (Oakland, CA), and holds a Master of Public Administration from the University of Washington.